HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. DR. SCHENCK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the lands is a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills in the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently. Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?"

The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is for this that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of these organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs. Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especially those parts which are diseased. If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

These facts, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

THE GIRL OF THE PERIOD.

She sits in a fashionable parlor,
And rocks in her easy chair;
She is clad in silks and satins,
And jewels are in her hair;
She winks and giggles and simpers,
And simpers and giggles and winks,
And though she talks but little,
'Tis a good deal more than she thinks.

She lies abed in the morning
Till nearly the hour of noon,
Then comes down snapping and snarling,
Because she was called so soon,
Her hair is still in papers,
Her cheeks still fresh with paint—
Remains of her last night's blushes,
Before she intended to faint!

She dotes upon men unshaven
And men with flowing hair;
She's eloquent over moustaches;
They give such a foreign air!
She talks of Italian music,
And falls in love with the moon;
And if a mouse were to meet her,
She would sink away in a swoon.

Her feet are so very little,
Her hands are so very white,
Her jewels so very heavy,
And her head so very light.
Her color is made of cosmetics
Though this she will never own,
Her body's made mostly of cotton,
Her heart is made wholly of stone.

She falls in love with a fellow
Who swells with a foreign air;
He marries her for her money,
She marries him for his—hair!
"One of the very best matches"—
Both are well mated in life;
She's got a fool for a husband,
He's got a fool for a wife!

THE ORGAN-GRINDER'S STORY.

I am an organ-grinder. I am a very plain, humble man, and one who has known his share of sorrow. I am not old, for I have only reached the age of thirty; but it seems to me I have lived a long, long time.

I was born in Italy, just on the slope of the Appenines, where they look down on the fertile plain of Tuscany. Almost the first objects upon which my eyes ever rested were the great Duomo, shining in the rich sunlight, and the bright thread of the Arno winding among the marble walls of Florence.

My parents were very poor. We were father, mother and four children and we had only one little hut to live in. We worked hard in the rich fields of the great gentleman in the plain below us. We ate our brown bread and our simple fruits in contentment, and bore our trouble cheerfully. In spite of our hard lot, we were very happy. We had much to be thankful for. Around us was the pure mountain air, above us was the bright sky, and below us—everywhere—was Italy.

My life passed on as quietly as the lives of my fellows until I was twenty years old. Then it changed.

One day I had lingered longer than usual in the fields where I was working. The sunlight was so warm, and the vines so lovely, that I had not the heart to go away. As I was lingering thus, a shadow across my path made me look up, and I saw a young girl standing by me. She was about my own age, tall, stately, and beautiful; and, like me, she was a peasant.

In Italy, we simple folks do not take long to become acquainted, for we do not encumber ourselves with the forms and ceremonies of our betters. So it was with this young girl and me. She was employed in the same fields, and she had come with her father to live just below the mountain slope. We waited and talked long in the vineyard, and when we climbed the mountain towards our homes, the shade lay upon it, and the lights of Florence were gleaming in the valley below.

After this, I was with Bianca almost constantly. We went to our daily task together, and returned home hand in hand. In the field I stayed by her, and lightened her task, by increasing my own. How it came about I know not, and you would not care to hear; but it ended as all such things do for both rich and poor; and one evening, as we parted at her door I held her to my heart and heard her say, "I love you, Pietro."

After that we had a short but perfect happiness. We looked forward to the day when we should have a little hut of our own on the mountain slope, and be no more parted for life. We had no fear with meeting with poverty, for we had contended against it all our lives. We only know we loved each other very dearly, and we thought that we could be happy in our new lot.

The owner of the fields in which we worked was an Austrian nobleman, who held a high rank in the army of those who crushed Italy to the earth. He loved neither Italy nor Italians.

Only a few months before Bianca and I were to be married, he came to visit his estate. It was not long before he saw Bianca. Her beauty pleased him, and he resolved on her ruin. What mattered it to him? He was lord of the estates—a great nobleman—and she only a peasant girl.

One day, while I was working in the vineyard, I heard her call my name and scream for help. In an instant I was by her side. She was struggling with the Austrian lord, who sought to kiss her. As she saw me she broke from him and sprang into my arms. The yellow-haired Austrian foamed with rage.

"Stand away, dog!" he shouted.—"Release the girl!"

"I will not!" I replied, indignantly. "She is mine—my promised wife."

He carried a riding whip with him at the time, and with this he struck me.

The hot Italian blood within me flared up in my face; and almost before I knew it, I laid him, bleeding and senseless, on the ground. In a moment I was calm again; and bending down, I found that I had not killed him.

My happiness was ended. I must fly from my home. I must leave Bianca. We did not speak, but gazed into each other's eyes with the anguish we could not utter. I clasped her in my arms and held her there long. I told her to wait patiently; that if I escaped I would toil faithfully to gain the money to bring her to me, wherever I might be. Then I kissed her lips for the last time, and fled.

I was successful; I reached Turin in safety. From thence I went to Genoa, where I obtained employment as a boatman. I worked steadily, but I did not realize my bright anticipations. Money came to me very slowly—ah, so slowly!—for wages were very small. I saved all I could, and at the end of three years I had barely enough to bring Bianca to me.

Then I got a friend to write to our parish priest, and ask him to tell her that I was ready to send for her if she would come. My letter was never answered. My friend wrote for me again, but still no answer came. Then my hope faded. Bianca was dead, I thought. Perhaps the cruel Austrian had killed her, to be revenged on me.

The time passed wearily, and at last came the war for Italian freedom. I entered upon the move with my whole heart. I loved Italy, and longed for her freedom; and beside this, I hoped that I might meet my Austrian enemy, for I did not doubt that he would be in the ranks of our foes.

I made a good soldier, and by the time the campaign was half over I had risen to the grade of sergeant—I had not met my enemy. I did not abandon hope however.

At Solferino the fight was long and bloody. Towards the close of the day, when the sun had almost set, the Austrians made a fierce assault upon our line. General Fonti had just told us that if we held our ground until dark the victory would be ours. As the Austrian line came on, a loud cheer rose from our ranks, and looking around, I saw our King bowing low in response to this greeting. He said nothing, but pointed with his sword to the Austrians. The bugles sounded the charge, and with a cheer we sprang forward. We met the enemy half way. The struggle was short and decisive. We drove the yellow-haired miscreants back in confusion.—As they broke, I caught a glimpse of an Austrian officer who was vainly endeavoring to rally his men. I the waning light I recognized him. It was the man who had caused all my misery.

With the yell of a tiger, I sprang towards him. Casting aside my rifle, I seized him. He cut me over the head with his sabre, but in another instant I tore it from his grasp, and dragged him from his horse. He recognized me, and his eyes blazed with fury. I had no weapon with me, having thrown aside my gun, but I clutched his throat, and forcing him down, tried to strangle him. I would have done so had not the King, who had witnessed the affair, came up and commanded me to spare him. I told the King my story, and begged him to allow me to take my vengeance upon the wretch; but he dismounted, and bidding some of those who surrounded us to take the Austrian to the rear, fixed a cross to my breast and placed a purse of gold in my hand. He told me a brave man should spare a fallen foe, and asked me for the sake of Italy to forego my revenge. I was conquered.

The money the King had given me was quite a large sum for one like me; I saved it carefully, and when the war was over I went back to Tuscany, which was now free. I found my friends still living, but Bianca was gone. They told me the Austrian devil had terrified the poor girl into submission to his vile purpose, and had ruined her. She had gone with her father to England.

I bade my home farewell once more and set out to find Bianca. I traveled over the Alps, and reached Marseilles I then worked my passage to England. When I landed, I was taken ill; and when I recovered, my little stock of money was very low.

I have come to England to find Bianca. I must travel many weary miles before I can find my lost one, and I had not much money.

With what was left to me I had an organ made to play the airs I loved best, and which Bianca used to sing to me. Now I go wandering about this country, through its huge cities and over its long roads, playing the airs of my far-off home hoping that she may hear them, and that I may find her in this way.

Perhaps I shall never see her again. Perhaps I shall die here, and they will bury me where no one will know my grave, or care for the poor organ-grinder sleeping there. Heaven knows.

☞ The wives of men of sentiment are not always the most appreciative of women. Jean Paul represents Siebenkas as reading one of his beautiful imaginings to his wife, who listened with eyelids cast down and bated breath. As he closed, the sharer of his joys beamed forth with, "Don't put on your left stocking to-morrow, dear; I must mend that hole in it." So, when Sir Walter and Lady Scott were rambling about their estate, and came upon some playful lambs frisking in a meadow, "Ah," said Sir Walter, "tis no wonder that poets, of the earliest ages, have made the lamb the emblem of peace and innocence." "They are indeed delightful animals," answered her ladyship, "especially with mint sauce."

A Thrilling Adventure.

The Paris Patrie sustains the well-earned reputation of the French press for producing sensational anecdotes, by contributing the following to that species of literature:

An adventure, truly horrible, and which if made the subject of a melodrama would certainly be denounced as improbable, has just occurred in the environs of Viterbo, in the Pontifical States. A cattle dealer stopped at an inn on the road not far from the city. He seemed very well satisfied with the accommodation and with himself, and he related to the innkeeper that he had just made an excellent bargain about some cattle, by which he had netted a sum of five thousand francs. After supper he started for the city, but had not gone far before he was attacked by three men who tried to get him down. He defended himself bravely, and succeeded in making his escape. He returned to the inn and related what had happened. At the same time he said he would sleep there, as he did not wish, for fear of another attack, to resume his journey until the next morning. Accordingly, a room was prepared for him, and he retired to bed and soon fell asleep. In the course of the night he awoke, and heard some one speaking outside the door. What he heard filled him with horror.

The innkeeper was saying to some one, "Dig the hole deeper in the garden. I will throw him out of the window, and you can bury him at once." The traveller understood the situation at once. They were going to murder him, and the innkeeper was in league with the murderers to share the plunder and conceal his body. He immediately arose and dressed himself, and, arming himself with a spade, which was standing in a corner of the bedroom, he waited. It was not long before he heard some one approach the door. It was opened softly, and the cattle-dealer saw the inn keeper about to step into the room. He immediately struck the wretch dead upon the floor with the spade.

The cattle-dealer then lifted up the body, and, opening the window, beneath which he could perceive by the dim light three men and a pit dug for himself, he threw the body into the yard. The three men took up the body, which they did not recognize, and set to work to bury it. The cattle-dealer, without losing a second, crept down stairs, opened the door of the inn, and hurried off to give information to the Papal Carabineers. They soon arrived at the scene of crime. The three accomplices of the would-be murderer had just finished their dismal work. They were immediately arrested and recognized as the sons of the inn-keeper. It was they, doubtless, who, at the instigation of their father, had attacked the cattle-dealer on the road.

ÆRIAL VOYAGES.—A number of French and English artists went up in balloons last year to take bird's eye views of the world. If they didn't go quite up to the moon, they went nearer our planetary neighbor than any living creature had gone before; and from that celestial height obtained most extraordinary panoramas of the various countries of Europe. This pursuit of "high art" was not unattended with dangers and perilous adventures. In one instance, Mr Glaisher, Director of the Meteorological Observatory of Greenwich, England, with a companion named Coxwell, ascended to an elevation of more than 34,000 feet above the level of the sea, and higher than the loftiest mountain peak of the globe. From this point the panoramic view of the country spread out beneath them was truly magnificent; but the cold was intense, the air almost too thin for respiration; and Mr. Glaisher, while engaged in making observations, suddenly fainted and became insensible. Mr. Coxwell endeavored to open the throttle valve, in order to descend, but the valve-cord had become so entangled, that this was impossible.—Perceiving but one way to preserve his life and that of his companion, the daring æronaut climbed up to where he could reach and open the valve—His movements caused the balloon to oscillate in the most fearful manner, and whirl in tremendous circles thro' the attenuated atmosphere. Had his benumbed hands slipped on the cords to which he clung, he must have been precipitated headlong downward thro' the enormous gulf of space, while the balloon, relieved of his weight, would have shot up into a still rarer atmosphere, where it must have burst. Fortunately his strong brain withstood the delirium of that tremendous waltz with the balloon, and his life and that of his companion were saved.

☞ It was in a Massachusetts village that an old scissor-grinder, calling on a minister made the usual query:

"Any scissors to grind?"

Receiving a negative answer, it was the minister's turn, which he took by asking:

"Are you a man of God?"

"I do not understand you."

"Are you prepared to die?"

The question struck him home.—Gathering up his kit and scrambling for the door, he exclaimed, terror-stricken:

"O Lord! O Lord! you ain't going to kill me, are you?"

True Marriage.

"Whenever," says Gail Hamilton, "man pays reverence to woman—whenever man feels the influence of any woman, purifying, chastening, abashing, strengthening him against temptation, shielding him from evil, ministering to his self-respect, medicining his weariness, peopling his solitude, winning from sordid prizes, enlivening his monotonous days with mirth, or fancy, or wit, flashing heaven upon his earth, and mellowing it all for spiritual fertility—there is the element of marriage. Whenever woman pays reverence to man—whenever woman rejoices in the strength of any man, feels it to be God's agent, upholding her weakness, confirming her purpose, and crowning her power; whenever he reveals himself to her just, upright, inflexible, yet tolerant, merciful, benignant, not unruffled, perhaps, but not oversome by the world's turbulence, and responding to all her gentleness, her feet on the earth, his head among the stars helping her to hold her soul steadfast in the right, to stand firm against the encroachments of frivolity, vanity, impatience, fatigue, discouragement, helping her to preserve her good nature, to develop her energy, to consolidate her thought, to utilize her benevolence, to exalt and illumine her life—there is the essence of marriage. Its love is founded on respect, and increases self-respect at the very moment of merging self in another. Its love is mutual; equally giving and receiving at every instant of its action. There is neither dependence nor independence. Years cannot weaken its bonds, distance cannot sunder them. It is a love which vanquishes the grave, and transfigures death itself into life.

A RED MAN.—The following has a smack of Mark Twain about it. We find it drifting unknown through the exchanges:

"A friend of ours, who took a trip to California, said that he was not afraid of Indians, because he belonged to the benevolent Order of Red Men, and knew all the passwords and winks and the figurative language and things, and no savage was going to touch him, initiated and fixed up as he was in regalia. He hadn't gone more than a hundred miles from Omaha before a band of Indians came at him and scooped him up. He took the chief aside and whispered the password in his ear, and gave him the grip twenty-six times on both hands, and made some observations about 'fifth moons' and 'happy hunting grounds.' The chief replied in a friendly manner by tomahawking him and jabbing his butcher knife into his vitals. Our friend remarked that these ceremonies were not observed in his lodge; but the chief wanted to show him all the peculiarities of the western system, so he scalped him and chopped off his nose, and was about to build a bon-fire on his stomach, when some soldiers arrived and rescued him. He is now the bald-headedest Red Man this side of the Pacific Ocean, and you never saw a person so disgusted with secret societies and Indian poetry. He is going to sue his lodge for passing a counterfeit grip on him, and for damage done by loss of his hair."

THE SECRET.—"Mother," said a child of ten years of age, "I want to know the secret of your going away alone every night and morning?"

"Why, my child?"

"Because it must be to see some one you love very much."

"And what leads you to think so?"

"Because I always notice that when you come back you appear to be more happy than usual."

"Well suppose I do go and see a friend I love very much, and after seeing Him and conversing with Him I am more happy than before, why should you wish to know everything about it?"

"Because I wish to do as you do, that I may be happy too."

"Well, my child, when I leave you in the morning and evening it is to commune with my Saviour; I go to ask Him for His grace to make me holy and happy. I ask Him to assist me in all the duties of the day, and especially to keep me from committing any sin against Him; and above all I ask Him to have mercy on you, and save you from the miseries of those who sin against Him."

"O that is the secret!" said the child; "then I must go with you."

GOD'S KINGDOM.—The King of Prussia while visiting a village in his land, was welcomed by the school children of the place. After their speaker had made a speech for them, he thanked them. Then taking an orange from a plate, he asked: "To what kingdom does this belong?" "The vegetable kingdom, sir," replied a little girl. The King took a gold coin from his pocket and holding it up asked, "And to what kingdom does this belong?" "To the mineral kingdom," said the girl. "And to what kingdom do I belong, then?" asked the King. The little girl colored deeply, for she did not like to say the animal kingdom, as he thought she would, lest his Majesty be offended—Just then it flashed into her mind that "God made man in His own image," and, looking up with a brightening eye, she said, "To God's kingdom, sir." The King was deeply moved. A tear stood in his eyes. He placed his hand on the child's head, and said, most devoutly, "God grant that I may be accounted worthy of that kingdom."

☞ Not having heard from the debating societies in relation to the conundrum: "Why do hens always lay eggs in the daytime?" a contemporary answers, "because at night they are roost-ers."

TEMPER.—Bad temper is oftener the result of unhappy circumstances than of organization. It frequently, however, has a physical cause, and a peevish child often needs dieting more than correcting. Some children are more prone to show temper than others, and sometimes on account of qualities which are valuable in themselves. For instance, a child of active temperament, sensitive feeling, and eager purpose, is more likely to meet with constant jars and rubs than a dull, passive child; and if he is of an open nature, his inward irritation is immediately in bursts of passion. If you repress those ebullitions by scolding and punishment you only increase the evil by changing passion into sullkiness. A cheerful, good tempered tone of your own, a sympathy with his trouble whenever the trouble has arisen from the ill-conduct on his part, are the best antidotes; but it would be better still to prevent beforehand all sources of annoyance. Never fear spoiling children by making them too happy. Happiness is the atmosphere in which all good affections grow—the wholesome warmth necessary to make the necessary to make the heart-blood circulate healthy and freely; unhappiness, the chilling pressure which produces here an inflammation, there an excrescence, and, worst of all, "the mind's green and yellow sickness," ill-temper.

HOW MONKEYS ARE CAUGHT.—The following plan to catch monkeys beats the old plan of pelting the same animals with stones to make them pick cocoanuts:

Monkeys are such cunning creatures that one would suppose them more difficult to catch than other wild animals. Pitfalls will take a lion, and the famished monarch of the forest will, after a few days starvation, dart into a cage containing food, and thus be secured. But how are monkeys caught? The ape family resemble man. Their vices are human. They love liquor and fall. In Darfour and Sennaar the natives make fomented beer of which the monkeys are passionately fond. Aware of this, the natives go to the parts of the forests frequented by the monkeys, and set on the ground calabashes of the enticing liquor. As soon as the monkey sees and tastes it, he utters loud cries of joy that soon attract his comrades. Then an orgie begins, and in a short time the beasts show all degrees of intoxication. Then the negroes appear. The drinkers are too far gone to mistrust them, but apparently take them for larger species of their own genius. The negroe take some up, and these immediately begin to weep and cover them with maudlin kisses.—When a negroe takes one by the hand to lead him off, the nearest monkey will cling to the one who thus finds support, and endeavor to go off also. Another will grasp him, and so on, till the negroe leads a staggering line of ten or a dozen tipsy monkeys. When finally brought to the village they are securely caged and gradually sober down, but for two or three days a gradually diminishing supply of liquor is given them, so as to reconcile them by degrees to their state of captivity.

A FUNNY BIRD.—A recent traveler in Australia thus describes the performance of a tame cockatoo, known by its pet name of "the doctor":

It pretended to have a violent toothache, and nursed its beak in its claw, rocking itself backward and forward as if in the greatest of agony, and in answer to all the remedies which were proposed, croaking out, "Oh, it ain't a bit of good!" and finally siding up to the end of the perch, and saying in a hoarse, but confidential whisper:—"Give us a drop of whiskey, do!"

It would also pretend to sew, holding a little piece of cloth underneath its claw, which rested on the perch, and going through the motions with the other, getting into difficulties with its thread, and finally singing a loud song in praise of sewing machines, just as if it were an advertisement.

"The "Doctor's" best performance is when he imitates a hawk. He reserves this fine piece of acting until his mistress is feeding her poultry; then, when all the hens and chickens, turkeys, and pigeons, are in the quiet enjoyment of their breakfast or supper, the peculiar, shrill cry of a hawk is heard over head, and the Doctor is seen circling in the air, uttering a scream occasionally. The fowls never find out that it is a hoax, but run to shelter, cackling in the greatest alarm—hens cackling loudly for their chicks, turkeys crouching under bushes, the pigeons taking refuge in their house.—As soon as the ground is quite clear, cocky changes his wild notes to peals of laughter from a high tree, and finally, alighting on the top of the hen-coop, filled with trembling chickens, remarks, in a suffocated voice: "You'll be the death of me!"

SENATOR SCOTT has our thanks for a copy of the Congressional Directory.

It is stated that Gov. Geary will be a candidate for United States Senator, next year, in place of Senator Cameron, whose term expires March 4, 1872.

☞The nation which exports manufactured products, instead of the raw material, attains the greatest wealth, and confers upon its citizens the greatest independence.

☞The Cubans are determined to be free of the Spanish yoke. We have just had news that they have whipped the Spanish forces as badly in proportion as the Prussians have beaten the French. Their day of deliverance is near at hand.

☞The movement for a convention to revise our State Constitution is gathering importance as the day of election approaches. In some of the counties its advisability is being made an issue in the primary selection of candidates for the State Legislature.

☞The Revenue officers in Philadelphia made a raid on Tuesday, on an illicit distillery, and arrested the owners, one of whom was afterwards rescued by the crowd. A file of marines was then procured and several persons who assisted at the escape arrested and bound over to appear at Court.

☞The next Legislature of this State will have the appointment of the Congressional and Legislative districts, the first for the next ten years, the second for seven. Both of these are now fixed by the same Legislature for the first time since 1801. The same thing will not occur again until 1941.

WHAT is to be gained by the proposed uniform series of school books in this State is not definitely explained, but it is pretty certain that somebody will try to push a bill to that effect through the next Legislature. And that somebody will make a nice job out of it, if he can.

THERE are some rumors of more changes in Grant's cabinet. If so, we would, like every other Pennsylvanian be much obliged if the President would recognize one of her iron sons. Who it should be, we will leave to his own judgment.

EXTRA PAY.—The vote in the 39th Congress to increase the pay of Senators and Representatives from $3,000 to $5,000 a year, stood 51 to 50. There were 85 dodgers, divided pretty evenly between the two parties. It was a nice calculation to carry the increase by a single vote, and a nice speculation all round—as it put just $2,000 a year in each member's pocket.

☞The census of 1860 showed that three millions, nine hundred and fifty-three thousand, six hundred and seventy persons were in bondage in this country. The census of the present year will show that there is not a single human being in the Union who is not a freeman in the full sense of the term. And all this change in ten years was effected by Republicans.

☞An Ohio correspondent of the New York Tribune says that ten of the districts in that State are certain to elect Republican Congressmen, the Democrats are sure of five, and four are doubtful with the best prospects for the Republicans. The same paper has advices from Illinois that the next delegation will stand the same as the present one—ten Republicans and four Democrats. Gen. John A. Logan, Gov. Palmer and ex-Gov. Oglesby are candidates for the next Senatorship.

IT is believed that the Labor Congress which recently met at Cincinnati undertook to work too many reforms at once—even the Women's Rights movement and Coolie question receiving a share of their "labor." When it was called for the interests of labor, why didn't they keep the hobbyists in the background, and then they could have accomplished something. The question of capital and labor, we think, is made to be more perplexing than it really is. If let alone, it would settle itself. But so long as there are one idea men allowed to talk, so long will there be the agitation, just as there is in almost every question, some of which are so trivial that they should not have the name of "question."

Representative Delegate System.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—In your issue of the 16th inst., we discover among a series of resolutions purporting to have been passed by the late Republican County Convention, one which we, as delegates to that Convention from Clay township and Three Springs borough, denounce as a base slander upon the action of that body. The resolution in question refers to the "Representative Delegate System," and we deny that any such resolution, in phraseology and intent, was adopted by that Convention. The manifest design of this resolution is to deceive the people and misrepresent the legitimate action and purpose of their delegates to the last convention, on the subject above referred to.

The resolution which did pass, when only a few delegates remained—probably not over a dozen—and the very last thing the convention did prior to adjournment, was that the whole subject pertaining to Delegate representation should be referred to the County Committee for their action, without any instruction as to any particular or specific plan or system they should recommend; or whether that Committee should recommend any system at all or not. But if the Committee did conclude to recommend some plan, that plan, as it was distinctly understood, was to be submitted at the next delegate meeting (in August 1871) to a vote of the Republican citizens of each district, borough and township respectively, and that vote should be considered as equivalent to instructions on that subject, to the delegates composing the next annual County Convention, in which and by which the matter was to be finally disposed of.

The resolution printed in the Globe states that the County Committee was 'instructed" to submit a particular or specific plan, that plan being set out in detail in the body of that resolution. Now we aver the Committee was not instructed by the Convention to submit any specifically expressed plan; but that the whole matter on the subject of Delegate Representation was simply referred to the Committee for its action—to originate, discuss, adopt or reject, at its will or pleasure. It is true something like the plan embodied in the Globe resolution, was spoken of in the Convention; but it was not the plan which the Committee was bound, under instructions, to adopt and submit to the people.

The Convention in passing the resolution it did, did not contemplate changing the present mode of delegate representation so that it would affect the next annual convention, and in this it acted wisely, because we hold no convention has the right, independently of the voice of the people at the ballot-box, to make any change vitally affecting the established organization of the party, or the mode by which that party keeps alive and sustains its organization. Much less right has a county committee so to act, without a positive expression from the people, directly on the subject, either through convention or otherwise. All measures of such a nature should originate with the people in their primary meetings; or at least they should have, in such meetings, the opportunity of approving or rejecting any proposed changes in their established usages or customs of the party.

☞It is now charged that the secret history of the Fenian raids into Canada shows that the British government had in its pay many of the officers of the brotherhood, doing its work of treachery and espionage. An Ottawa letter says that it will be of no little interest to the friends of the poor devils who fell at Pigeon Hill to know that one of the "Colonels" who sent on his dupes to death was in the government buildings at Ottowa a week after, and left them with a cheque for $300 in his pocket.

THE WAR.—Since the last great engagements in France, MacMahon and Bazaine, the two French Marshals, have been vainly endeavoring to effect a junction to interpose a barrier to the progress of Prince Charles, and Gen. Steinmetz. The Crown Prince of Prussia is reported to be within six days march of Paris, and has at least 150,000 well trained troops under his command, while he may be opposed in his onward march by raw levies, poorly armed.

☞The Treasury statement made last Saturday shows a total gain for the year ending with June of $119, 131,425. The total receipts from all sources were $556,935,818 and the expenditures $418,703,560.77. The expenditures include a large sum for the purchase of sinking fund bonds and leave a balance of $140,502,471.60 in the Treasury. The statement is full, important and satisfactory, but not unexpected.

THE Democratic managers in Louisiana are working hard to secure the negro vote. The chairman of a principal committee of that State informed a colored man that negro delegates would not only be received at the Democratic Convention, but welcomed also.

☞According to the immemorial political tradition, the party controlling the last Congress preceding a Presidential canvass will be successful in electing their candidate. The Democracy are straining every nerve to gain the next Congress, and so not to be ruled out of the next Presidency.

☞The State Central Committe at its recent session in Altoona, fixed the 10th of March next for the State Convention, to nominate a candidate for Supreme Judge. The question of a Convention to amend the State Constitution also came up, but it was referred to the next State Convention.

Lewisburg & Spruce Creek Railroad.

MR. EDITOR:—It appears that the project of a Railroad from Lewisburg to Spruce Creek is again resuscitated. It is now fifteen or twenty years since an act was passed for building this road; and it appears strange, that whilst other roads of less importance are being built all round that this one should be neglected so long. Passing, as this road does through a number of the most beautiful and wealthy agricultural vallies of which the State of Pennsylvania is so justly proud, we trust that by the application of renewed energy it will now be accomplished, in order to stop that detericration already begun, and if possible give new impulse to enterprise and industry. In 1843, C. B. Trego, then writing his Geography of Pennsylvania, called upon your correspondent then at ————, for information in reference to Huntingdon county, and the following is the description of Spruce Creek as then given, and to be seen in that work, viz: "On Spruce Creek alone, the length of which is but about ten miles, are two furnaces, seven forges, six grist mills, seven sawmills and two woolen factories." Mr. Trego pronounced Spruce Creek at that time the most valuable stream of water of its size in the State. And is it not humiliating now, to perceive that, instead of progress, there are many marks of retrogression in that lovely valley.

And is it not a sin against the bounties of a kind Providence, to refuse or neglect to open a way by which the riches of His bounty may be brought into market for the diffusion of wealth, and the promotion of happiness. There are those rich agricultural vallies of pure limestone wheatland, not surpassed in the State either for quantity or the quality of its production, surrounded with high lands, clothed in all the gorgeousness of nature's richest wealth

There is fine white marble on the farm of my departed friend Mr. John Bailey. There are exhaustless mines of Pipe Ore, from which is being manufactured as good malleable iron as is to be found in the world. There is as good moral society as you will find elsewhere. There, over forty years ago, a vigorous war was declared against intemperance against fearful odds, which, after years of earnest conflict resulted in the most perfect victory of temperance principles.—There is as much to render society prosperous and happy as should be desired. Let mean selfishness be laid aside; let each individual learn that he has an interest in the success of every other individual lawfully employed

Four or five forges are now idle on Spruce creek. Huntingdon furnace has ceased operation from scarcity of fuel. Pennsylvania furnace, which has been a great benefit to society for over half a century, has recently been enlarged at great expense, and it, too, must soon cease to impart life to industry and health to trade, if not rendered accessible to mineral coal by railroad. Then let there be harmony of action. If the whole Railroad can not be made, let it be finished from Pine Grove to its western terminus; if that cannot be done let it not fail to be made from Penna. Furnace.

There is where your correspondent first breathed the breath of life; where he lived nearly three score and ten years, and until he consigned to the grave the very last of his equals in years, and companions of early life; where he participated in as many of the mingled joys and sorrows of life as usually falls to the lot of man. But though no longer a citizen of Spruce Creek, I love it none the less because my lot is now distant from it. I still love to wander along its banks, and its rill is music to my ears. And though I have passed that period of life in which I might be expected to participate in any enterprise, still I have felt it due to my native valley, and my few remaining friends, thus to spend a few solitary moments. And should I live to see the iron horse pass over the very ground upon which I gamboled barefooted in childhood, it will only be one of the evidences of progress.

A HEROIC GIRL—CAMBRIA COUNTY HAS AN IDA LEWIS.—Instances of genuine heroism often happen that the world knows little or nothing of. An instance has been brought to our attention which occurred quite recently at Sulphur Springs near the Somerset county line which is worthy of note.—Carrie S., age seven years, the little daughter of Mr. Jos. S. Lare of the Pittsburg Post, along with her mother had been stopping near that place for several weeks, and one day last week, she in company with a young lady and Miss Emma, daughter of Joseph Orris, Esq., of Scalp Level, this county, aged about thirteen years were crossing a brook at a shallow place to get to the spring, when the child slipped upon the mossy rock and was rapidly drifted by the current, into deep water.—The young woman at once plunged into the water to rescue the little girl, but being unable to swim, they were both in imminent danger of drowning. The girl Emma Orris, a good swimmer, with great coolness and remarkable presence of mind hurried further down the stream and venturing boldly to the rescue, succeeded, after they had sank twice, in saving both from a watery grave.

The gratitude of the parents toward this heroic and self-sacrificing little girl can readily be imagined and a few days ago a beautifully wrought solid silver cup, appropriately inscribed, from the parents of Carrie, presented to Miss Orris as an acknowledgement of her bravery and successful efforts. We are proud of Miss Orris as a daughter of Cambria country.—Johnstown Democrat.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

Resume of the Situation.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The Times this morning has the following resume of the situation:—

King William, leaving sufficient force before Metz, where the siege works rise like exhatalations, joined the Crown Prince, who was pushing on for Paris. The movements of MacMahon begin now to be intelligible. A refugitive from Woerth, and avoiding Metz, be passed through the Vosges to the Moselle, to Nancy, and to Chalons, where he was reinforced by the Garde Mobile and volunteers. His obvious aim has been to bar the passages and prevent the advance of the Crown Prince on Paris. Affecting to disregard him, the Crown Prince moved on his flank past the camp at Chalons, offering MacMahon battle, which the latter declined, retreating on Rheims, leaving the Chalons camp to the Prussians. Since that time Rheims itself has been abandoned. The obvious motive throughout on the part of the French has been to avoid a fight. The Prussians are now within a short march of Paris, where perhaps some slight additional resistance may be met.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The environs of Metz have been inundated by order of the French authorities.

LONDON, August 28.—The following is an official dispatch, dated Bar le Duc, Friday night: The garrison of Vitry surrendered on Thursday morning. The Prussians captured sixteen guns. Two battalions of the French Garde Mobile were annihilated by the Prussian cavalry, and seventeen French officers and eight hundred and fifty soldiers captured. The Prussians had one major severely and three troopers slightly wounded.

LONDON, August, 27.—It is reported that a battle occurred near Rheims yesterday. Heavy cannonading was heard but the particulars are not received. The engagements was probably between the forces of MacMahon and Prince Frederick Charles' army. The Crown Prince at Bar le Duc has been joined by part of King William's forces. The United army is moving rapidly, and will probably be before Paris on Tuesday or Wednesday. The great aim of the King is to conclude the campaign as speedily as possible.

PARIS, August 27, midnight.—The following official intelligence has been made public: On the 25th instant, at nine in the morning, Verdun was attacked by the Prussians, 10,000 strong, commanded by the Crown Prince of Saxony, and after a combat which lasted three hours, during which time 300 shells were thrown into the city, the Prussians being much injured by our artillery, were repulsed with considerable loss. The Garde Nationale served our guns. We have five killed and twelve wounded. The enemy fired an ambulance train, which was struck seventeen times and two persons belonging to it killed. The citizens made a vigorous defense.

The movement of the Prussians along the Aube seems to have been arrested. They are falling back on St. Dizier. Large bodies of infantry are passing through Lunoville and Bayon.

GOV. GEARY has issued a proclamation to the Commissioners of all the counties of the Commonwealth to instruct the several assessors and Registers of voters to obey and conform to the requirements of the recent constitutional amendments, including the Fifteenth; and requiring the Sheriff to publish it in his election proclamations.

AN INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE
To the Republican voters of Huntingdon county:
I announce myself as an "Independent Candidate" for Associate Judge, and ask the support of all honest and independent men who hate rings and "ring" candidates. Having stood by the Republican party from its birth up until its betrayal of the people, in the fraudulent adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment; I feel that I should have some claims upon the true men of that party.
I stand upon the Chicago platform, upon which Gen. Grant was elected; but I utterly repudiate the fraud and outrage by which the right of negroes to vote has been declared a part of the fundamental law of the land, blotting out a part of the Constitution of our own State, which as officers we are sworn to support.
If elected, I will endeavor to discharge my duties faithfully, and I flatter myself that my profession in life has not unfitted me for the position, besides, it would often be found a great convenience to have an Associate Judge residing in Huntingdon.

THE AMENDED BANKRUPT LAW.—The bankrupt law has been amended by a recent act of Congress in some few particulars which are worthy of public notice Provisions are now made that the circuit judge, in cases of sickness, absence or other disability of the district judge, may make all necessary rules and orders preparatory to the final hearing in causes of bankruptcy. The law provides also that the provisions of that section known as the fifty per cent. clause shall not apply to those debts from which the bankrupt seeks discharge, which were contracted prior to the first of January, 1869. In other words, a debtor whose assets do not pay fifty cents on the dollar must now obtain the assent of a majority, in number and value of those creditors only, whose debts were contracted since the 1st of January 1869 A clause of the thirty-ninth section makes it an act of bankruptcy that a person "being a banker, merchant, or trader, has fraudulently stopped or suspended, and not resumed payment of his commercial paper within a period of fourteen days." Much difficulty has been found by the courts in the construction of this clause especially as to the meaning of the word "fraudulently." All ambiguity has been removed by an mendment as follows: "Or who being a banker, broker, merchant, trader, manufacturer or miner, has fraudulently stopped payment, or who has stopped or suspended and not resumed payment of his commercial paper within a period of fourteen days." The bankrupt law is improved by these amendments.

A SIMPLE knowledge of the inflammable nature of kerosene oil would probably put a stop to accidents. As the oil burns down into the lamp, a highly inflammable gas gathers over its surface, and as the oil decreases the gas increases. When the oil is nearly consumed a slight jar will often inflame the gas, and an explosion is sure to follow, causing in many cases, death and destruction. A bombshell is not more to be dreaded. Now, if the lamp is not allowed to burn more than half way down, such accidents are almost impossible. Always fill your lamps every morning; then you scarcely need fear explosion.

☞ The war in Europe continues with slight prospect of peace. One thing is certain, one of the great powers must fail; but not so with Luke Reilly, the baker. He knows no such word as fail in making good Bread, Cakes, etc., and his Candies and Bonbons are fit for either King William or Emperor Napoleon, their wives, "or any other man."

☞ We have received a copy of the San Diego (Cal.) Union which makes mention of a warehouse belonging to Gordon Stewart & Co., forwarding and commission merchants, which contained some 300,000 pounds of barley, wheat and corn, and a mammoth pile of hay. Mr. S is a Huntingdon Co. "juvenile," and it will please his friends to know that he is doing a large and successful business.

We saw in town last week our popular friend, A. V. Westbrook, now a resident of Philadelphia. We learn that he is now the sole proprietor and manufacturer of a remedy for Piles, which is very efficacious in the cure of that troublesome complaint. The Doctor is stopping at the Morrison House, where those afflicted will do well to call on him.

CELEBRATION.—A beautiful day added much to the enjoyment of a scene witnessed at McConnellstown, Saturday, the 20th day of August. It was a procession of Sabbath School scholars and teachers. We did not notice one in all the throng that appeared gloomy, sad, or disappointed; but rather the opposite—all countenances were shining with joys already at hand, and with bright anticipations for the pleasures of the day. Among this number not one could be found that entertained envy, jealousy, or sectarian strife, for this was A UNION of the Methodist and Reformed Sabbath schools.

Everything connected with this festival seemed so inviting that we joined the group and marched with them under the inspiration of martial music, skillfully performed, to Oak Island, McCoy's Grove. Here we found the arrangements convenient. The exercises of the day were opened by singing and praper, in which Rev. Shontz officiated. Brief but well-telling addresses were given by Revs. Barrick of Philadelphia and Sangree of McConnellstown. The scholars were then dismissed to engage in proper social enjoyments, or to commune with nature's laughing rivulets, huge oaks, and grassy carpets, which the site beautifully blended. At 12:30 P. M. all were called together and marched around the table bountifully supplied with the most choicy eatables. This well-spread table was a strong proof of the generosity and good taste of the women of McConnellstown and vicinity. After dinner we again entered the grove for amusement. At 3 P. M. the celebration was closed with prayer.

The grand success of the day was in a great measure the result of the arduous and determined manner the committee to whom the arrangements were entrusted, labored. They did their part nobly, meriting the thanks of the community.

We hope that the innocent smiles radiated from the attendants of this celebration may be crystallized emblems of the infancy of our Sabbath schools, after they have grown to manhood, strong in building up the church. Our wish for the schools is, that they may grow in numbers and in the knowledge of religious truth; that every religious idea they are instrumental in imparting may in due season become a religious act.

ROSADALIS
THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.
Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis and for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.
Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore, says:
I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.
Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

XXVIII.

GRAIN GROWING—EAST AND WEST.

I disclaim all pretensions to ability to teach Western farmers how to grow Indian Corn abundantly and profitably, while I cheerfully admit that they have taught me somewhat thoroughly worth knowing. In my boyhood, I hoed Corn diligently for weeks at a time, drawing the earth from between the rows up about the stalks to a depth of three or four inches, thus forming hills which the West has since taught me to be of no use, but rather a detriment, embarrassing the efforts of the growing, hungry plants to throw out their roots extensively in every direction, and subjecting them to needless injury from drouth. I am thoroughly convinced that Corn, properly planted, will, like Wheat and all other grains, root itself just deep enough in the ground, and that to keep down all weeds and leave the surface of the corn-field open, mellow, and perfectly flat, is the best as well as the cheapest way to cultivate Corn. And I do not believe that so much human food, with so little labor, is produced elsewhere on earth as in the spacious fields of Wheat and Corn in our grand Mississippi valley.

And yet I have seen in that valley many ample stretches covered with Corn, whereof the tillage seemed susceptible of improvement. Riding between these great corn-fields in October, after everything standing thereon had been killed by frost, it seemed to my observation that, while the corn crop was fair, the weed-crop was far more luxuriant; so that, if everything had been cut clean from the ground, and the corn and the weeds placed in opposite scales, the latter would have weighed down the former. I cannot doubt that the cultivation, or lack of cultivation, which produces or permits such results, is not merely slovenly, but unthrifty.

The West is for the present, as for a generation she has been, the granary of the East. In my judgment, she will not long be continued to remain so. Fifty years ago, the Genesee valley supplied most of the wheat and flour imported into New-England; ten years later, Northern Ohio was our principal resource; ten years later still, Michigan, Indiana, Northern Illinois and Eastern Wisconsin, had been added to our grain-growing territory.—Another decade, and our flour-manufacturers had crossed the Mississippi, laying Iowa and Minnesota under liberal contributions, while Western New-York had ceased to grow even her own bread stuffs, and Ohio to produce one bushel more than she needed for home consumption. Can we doubt that this steady recession of our Egypt, our Hungary, is destined to continue. Twenty three years ago, when I first rode out from the then, rising village of Chicago to see the Illinois prairies, nearly every wagon I met was loaded with wheat, going into Chicago, to be sold, for about 50 cents perbushel, and the proceeds loaded back in the form of lumber, groceries, and almost everything else, grain excepted, needed by the pioneers; then dotting, thinly and irregularly, that whole region with their cabins. Now, I presume the district I then traversed produces hardly more grain than it consumes; taking Illinois altogether, I doubt that she will grow her own breadstuffs after 1880; not that she will be unable to produce a large surplus, but that her farmers will have decided that they can use their lands otherwise to greater advantage. Iowa and Minnesota will continue to export grain for perhaps twenty years longer; but even their time will come for saying, "New-York and New-England (not to speak of old England) are too far away to furnish profitable markets for such bulky products; the cost of transportation absorbs the larger part of the cargo. We must export instead Wool, Meat, Lard, Butter, Cheese, Hops, and various manufactures, whereof the freight will range from 2 up to not more than 25 per cent, of the value." They will thus save their soil from the tremendous exaction made by taking grain crop after grain crop persistently, which long ago exhausted most of New England and Eastern New York of wheat-forming material, and has since wrought the same deplorable result in our rich Genesee valley, while Eastern Pennsylvania, though settled nearly two centuries ago, having pursued a more rational and provident system of husbandry, grows excellent wheat-crops to this day.

I insist that the States this side of the Delaware, though they will draw much grain from the Canadas after the political changes that cannot be far distant, will be compelled to grow a very considerable share of their own breadstuffs; that the West will cease to supply them unless at prices that they will deem exorbitant; and that grain-growing eastward of a line drawn from Baltimore due north to the Lakes will have to be very considerably extended. Let us see, then whether the East is not unwise in having so generally abandoned grain-growing.

I leave out of the account most of New England, as well as of Eastern New York, and the more rugged portions of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where the rocky, hilly, swamp face of the country seems to forbid any but that patchy cultivation, wherein machinery and mechanical power can scarcely be made available, and which seem, therefore, permanently fated to persevere in a system of agriculture and horticulture not essentially unlike that they now exhibit. In the valleys of the Penobscot, the Kennebec, the Hudson, and of our small rivers, there are considerable tracts absolutely free from these natural impediments, whereon a larger and more efficient husbandry is perfectly practicable, even now; but these intervales are generally the property of many owners; are cut up by roads and fences; are held at high prices: so that I will simply pass them by, and take for illustration the "Pine Barrens" of Southern New Jersey, merely observing that what I say of them is equally applicable, with slight modifications, to large portions of Long Island, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and the Carolinas.

A SHERIFF IN THE SHOW BUSINESS.—Sheriff Myers, of this county, received authority from parties in Philadelphia to levy upon the circus department of Gardner & Forepaugh's "Model Circus and monster Menagerie," which was announced to exhibit in this city this afternoon and evening. Accordingly, yesterday he dispatched Deputy Sheriff Hess to Reamstown, where it then was, and where the execution was served. The deputy at once took charge of the concern and accompanied it to this city. The execution is against Dan Gardner and John Forepaugh, and amounts to about $14,000. Inasmuch as the show was advertised for this city, Sheriff Myers did not feel disposed to "be rough" on the parties, but allowed them to fill their bill for to day, and at the close of the performance this evening will take charge of all the horses and appurtenances belonging to the concern, when an inventory will be taken, the stock advertised and then sold at sheriff sale, unless an arrangement is effected in the meantime. It is proper to state that the collection of animals, or the menagerie department, is not subject to execution, as it belongs to other parties. The Deputy Sheriff accompanied the caravan in its march through the streets this morning and attracted considerable attention. It is probable the first time in the history of the sheriffs of Lancaster county that one has been called upon to run a show on so extensive a scale.—Lancaster Express, 16th.

ADDRESS

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED,

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED

FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE

CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpatation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick skum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you restless nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but these they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in these organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung disease. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it be, and invite a trial from the afflicted every where. Price 50 cts., medium size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by
